Have You Decided Upon the Bank?
If there is anybody today who isn't thoroughly sold upon the idea of thrift, we'll admit that we don't know who it is. The necessity for putting by some money during the productive period, to take care of the requirements of the unproductive period, is so self-evident that few people today need to have their attention drawn to it.
It is true, however, that there are lots of people who are getting ready to start saving, and yet who have not decided upon the bank they wish to patronize. To such people we wish to extend a most cordial invitation to make our bank theirs.

The Good American Thanksgiving Day

Some way Thanksgiving seems to be the real national holiday, when everyone thinks of "home," be it far or near, and of the dear ones they loved, possibly many years ago. The old folks long for their children, that they have been separated from maybe for many years. The good son and daughter will think then of mother and father and long to be with them again on this one day. Bountiful nature has given them good store of all things to make them thankful, but they must have their dear ones with them to appreciate the day. Turkey, of course, is the piece de resistance, with the accompanying pumpkin (with or without frost on it), which the good old mother is wont to make into the succulent pie, which is surely the national dish for Thanksgiving. Then comes the cranberries and the sweet potatoes and the other good things that mother only knows how to prepare for her hungry family. No matter where you may have dined, at home or abroad, with a menu a yard long and with unpronouncable names and unrecognized viands, none can compare with the old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner we had at home. It is not the food alone, but the kindly spirit with which it is flavored, the open door welcome, and the greetings from those we love that makes it a great feast, and we wish for our readers just such a dinner and just such a reunion and welcome.

Join the Red Cross. There is no better place to invest a dollar.

Do your Christmas shopping early, and do it with home merchants.

Mrs. A. Hemmings of 6429 Harvard ave., has been seriously ill at her home since last Friday.

Catholic Daughters of America will give a play November 19 and 20, at the Englewood K. of C. club house, 6321 Harvard ave.

The proposition to light 63rd st. from Wentworth ave. to State st., is meeting with the approval of all the merchants. This would open up all of the territory to the east whose patronage belongs rightly to Englewood, but has been cut off by the dark streets and the dismal subway.

Miss Alice Lewis of Chicago, who is at present in Olivet college, is leaving Monday for Racine, Wis., where she will assist in a two weeks revival. She is to sing, during the revival, in the original Aeolian Quartet, of the Nazarene church. At the close of the meeting she will again resume her college work.

Be sure to leave your Thanksgiving orders for mince and pumpkin pie with Burkhard's bakery, 443 63rd st.—Adv.

What Would Happen If We Had No Savings Banks

(Prepared by James H. Hughes of First Englewood State Bank)

The modern savings bank has become such a familiar part of our daily life that some of us perhaps do not appreciate what it does for us—how it is practically indispensable to our progress and security. Would you believe it if I said the middle class people of this country would be reduced almost to serfdom if the savings bank should be suddenly taken away? That is rather a strong statement, I admit, but let me prove it by taking you back to the days when there were no savings banks and when the people were in the condition I stated: virtual serfdom.

Little more than a hundred years ago there were no savings banks. As a result, pauperism was so common as to be the usual, rather than unusual, condition.

It is said that in the British Isles, for example, half the population was in a pauperized condition, and that hundreds of thousands of people in Scotland—the land of thrift—lived on charity.

This state of affairs was caused largely by the lack of facilities for depositing money such as are afforded by the modern savings bank. The upper class were provided with facilities for safeguarding their money, and the functions of banks were limited to commercial and governmental transactions. But the people really had no means of saving.

The smallest sum banks would accept was the equivalent in American money of about $50, and as few people possessed that much—an amount corresponding to at least $200 now—the banking system did not meet the requirements of the majority of the people.

Contrast this fact with the conditions of today, when we can start a savings account with as little as one dollar.

A century ago people had no safe place to put small sums. They had to use a mattress, or some other crude means of secreting funds. They ran the risk of theft, and were constantly tempted to spend the money. Consequently, saving for ordinary folks was practically impossible in those days.

Not being able to get ahead financially the people were dependent entirely upon the bounty of employers. They could not demand better wages or working conditions because they had no money to back them up.

When unemployment came, they were penniless. They were, in fact, industrial serfs.

Scotland was the location of the first savings bank. The Rev. Henry Duncan was the originator. The bank was started in a little cottage and the money was kept in an iron safe. People were suspicious at first, so the safe was provided with three locks. Rev. Duncan held one key and the other two were held by elders of the church. All three had to be present whenever the safe was opened.

The bank accepted deposits of any amount, however small. Some of the deposits were as low as a few pennies. Deposits the first year amounted to about $750. Little by little the bank grew, until in the fifth year the deposits amounted to about $8,000—quite a large sum for the small village where the bank was located.

The effect of the bank was immediately felt. Poverty decreased substantially. Other banks were started. People came to the village from all over to observe the workings of the bank and to carry the idea back home. Soon savings banks were operating in every part of the British Isles, as well as in foreign countries, and all were patterned after the modest Scottish institution.

Strange to relate, there was opposition to the movement. A bitter fight waged in parliament before the first savings bank act was passed in 1817. Finally, however, the idea was accepted and savings banks became an integral part of the banking system.

It is difficult for us in the twentieth century to appreciate what a boon the savings bank has been to the world. Today we have strong banks that not only keep our money safe, but pay interest, which permits your money to work for you and grow.

A gloomy word picture could be drawn of the effect on our daily lives if the savings bank should be taken away. What means would you have for providing against a "rainy day"? You would have to go back to the risky plan of hiding money some place in your home, and unscrupulous people, aware of this general state of affairs, would find it easy to rob you. Moreover, your money would not increase through the power of interest. It would be dormant.

Your feeling of independence would be taken away; a constant dread of losing the funds that stood between you and starvation would continually harass you.

But enough of this. The day when the world had no savings banks is gone. We are fortunate that we live in an age when saving is made easy, and the people have the opportunity of making themselves financially independent.

How Much Milk Do You Use Each Day?

Here is what Bernarr MacFadden, famous health authority, says about this important subject in The Miracle of Milk: "I am willing to go on record as stating . . . ninety per cent of all malnutrition among children everywhere could be cured if two quarts of milk a day were supplied each child.

"I heartily agree with Dr. Graham Lusk when he states that no family of five can afford to purchase a pound of meat until it has first bought at least three quarts of milk."

Olson-Lake Wedding

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at the Englewood Baptist church Tuesday evening, November 18, at 8 o'clock. The church was beautifully decorated with palms and chrysanthemums. Mr. Robert Harper, accompanied by Mrs. Willard Huyck at the organ, sang "I Love You Truly," and the choir sang, as never before, "The Bridal Chorus," from "The Rose Maiden," by F. H. Cowen.

Mr. Benjamin Lake, the groom, was attended by Rr. Robert Figerfoof of LaPorte, Ind., as best man, also by Messrs. Bertil Hindmarsh, Leo Cade and Lee Smith. The ribbon bearers were two little sisters from Kalamazoo, Mich., Misses Katherine Portia and Betty Jane Hodges. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Lillian Stevenson Smith and Miss Claire Ragnette, gowned in green and orchid and crepe de chine. The maid of honor, the bride's sister, Miss Charlotte Olson, wore salmon crepe de chine, each attendant carried a large bouquet of pink roses. The flower girl, the two year old niece of the bride, little June Carol Olson, was dressed in pink silk. The bride, attired in white satin with a beautiful tulle veil, carrying a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, walked down the aisle upon the arm of her father, Mr. Edgar Olson, who gave her away. The ceremony was read by Dr. Charles Alvin Brooks. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, 7629 Philips ave. The bride, who was an Englewood girl and a favorite among the young people, received many wonderful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Lake will spend their honeymoon in Florida and return to Chicago by the way of the coast, visiting Baltimore and Washington. The groom, Mr. Benjamin Lake, is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Lake of Elkhart, Ind.

Thanksgiving Day and the Turkey

The first time that Thanksgiving Day and the turkey were brought into intimate relation was in 1621, when Governor Bradford, of Plymouth Colony, set aside a day to celebrate the gathering of the first American harvest—made by the Pilgrims who had come over in the Mayflower the year before. This initial harvest had saved the colony, and incidental to the religious features of the occasion the governor sent forth four men with their flintlock fowling pieces to procure meat to grace the festive board that the colonists might, after a more special manner, rejoice together."

When America was first explored by white men, wild turkeys were found in large numbers from New England to Mexico. History shows also that turkeys had been raised in a domestic state by the Aztecs of Mexico at a still earlier period, and that they were introduced into Europe by white explorers and were there greatly prized as a table delicacy upon important festive occasions.

In the days of the Pilgrim Fathers wild turkeys still strutted in unrestricted pride and splendor through the forests of New England in great flocks. Doubtless the then friendly red man had introduced the early settlers to the creamy taste of the white and the succulence of the dark meat of the turkey; so wild turkeys were the quest of hunters, and constituted the piece de resistance of the first Thanksgiving Day table.

From that good day to this the turkey, either wild or tame, has occupied the place of honor at the American Thanksgiving dinner from the eastern tip of Main to the Golden Gate, and from the most northern border to the magnolia-scented shores of the Gulf of Mexico.

Just why the bird should have been called "turkey" in the English language, no one seems to know. The realm of His Sultanic Majesty had no more to do with the introduction of the bird into polite society than did Greenland or Kamchatka. The real turkey is a bird indigenous to North America and was from here introduced to the rest of the world.

It may be that since the bird was brought to northern Europe from Spain it was concluded that, like many other unusual things, it came from Turkey or the Near East. Again, the bird may have named itself, since the call of the hen to her chicks sounds very much like "tur-r-k, tur-r-rk." At any rate, there is no actual connection between the bird and the country of the same name.

A Valuable Speedometer

Swedish engineers have invented a new type of speedometer which they state will control the speed of the car, says Acting Commercial Attache H. Sorenson in a report to the department of commerce.

It connects to a round disk connected with the front axle by means of a shaft. On the disk is a set of eccentric circles which record the speed at which the car is driven, ranging from 0 at the center to 60 kilometers per hour at the outer circle.

The circumference of the inner circle is arranged to register a distance traveled of 1000 meters.

In the center of the disk are several register fittings. Two figures indicate the maximum speed of the car during the last and the next to the last kilometer; a five-figure register indicates the total distance traveled; a three-figure system measures a given stretch of road traveled.

Ezra Meeker, ninety-four years old, flew from Vancouver, Washington, D. C., over the trail he covered in 1852 in a wagon train. It took him five months to make the journey in 1852 and the return trip, piloted by Lieutenant O. J. Kelley, was made in twenty-four hours, flying time.

Our Weekly Poem

THE WISE OLD FOWL

The robin and the oriole
Get 'round the world a bit.
When blizzards hurry from the pole
They pack their grips and flit.
They spread their wings in every clime,
They visit pleasant lands
And seldom ever does their time
Hang heavy on their hands.

A different bird is old Jim Crow—
He doesn't care to roam.
In blazing sun or chilling snow
He always stays at home.
In unknown lands, has Jim;
The homely and familiar sights
Are good enough for him.

The robin and the oriole,
Despite their happy song,
Consider Jim a simple soul
Whose views of life are wrong.
They give him a contemptuous gaze
As southward they depart,
Despising the home-keeping ways
Of his provincial heart.

But generations of them die
In travels here and there,
They tumble, weary, from the sky
As on their flights they fare.
But old Jim Crow thinks his way best;
He has no taste for strange delights
No accidents he fears;
He just sticks around the old home nest,
And lives a hundred years!

A Special Thanksgiving Day Message

—From—

MRS. BURD GRAY

The Celebrated Herbalist

6429 Yale Avenue
Office Entrance Side Door

Office Hours: 8 a. m. to 7 p. m.
No Visiting Hours on Saturdays and Mondays

As we approach another Thanksgiving Day I wish to express my gratitude to all my friends and patrons who, during the past twelve months, have so generously supported me, both in my regular line of business and in every worth-while movement that has engaged my attention.

We, as a people, are the most favored of all the people of the earth. From a material standpoint we have received great blessings--thanks to the goodness of Providence. Our crops have been bountiful, and, from an economic standpoint, we are today the leading nation of all time.

We emerged from the World War the greatest creditor nation on earth. No country was ever so wealthy as our own beloved America. Truly, Providence has smiled upon this fair land of ours.

But not only have we cause to be grateful because of our material progress; we likewise have many reasons other than this for which we should be truly thankful. We should be thankful because our nation has maintained those high and noble ideals which, after all, are of far more value than the merely material things.

America has always responded to the appeals of the weak, the unfortunate and the half-starved of other lands, and has proved that both in name and fact she is a CHRISTIAN nation.

And so, my friends, I am thankful to you for your generous support in all that I have tried to do, and I am also thankful that I am privileged to live beneath the red, white and the blue of the stars and stripes in this, "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

MRS. BURD GRAY,
6429 Yale Avenue.

Thanksgiving

We thank Thee, O Father, for all that is bright—
The gleam of the day and stars of night,
The flowers of our youth and the fruits of our prime,
And the blessings that march down the pathway of time.

We thank Thee, O Father, for days yet to be:
For hopes that our future will call us to Thee.
Let all our eternity form, through Thy love,
One Thanksgiving Day in the mansion above.

—Will Carleton.

Jinks—He's got his hands full trying to locate its parking places.

In most cases a bit of scandal is bred by a feeling of envy.

Mrs. Jones always refers to her husband as a "theory" because he seldom works.

A correspondent writes: "A joke is like a pretty ankle: it has to be seen to be appreciated."

Blinks—A man ought to spend a little time learning where the interesting places of his home town are.

We are now reading the usual excuses why the dealers have to charge so much for turkeys and holiday poultry.

One of the standing jokes on the newspaper galleys is the hotel that is going to be built (?) in Englewood. Over east in Hyde Park they have more than they need and we who need one can't get it.

"They tell me Simpson had quite a scrap with his wife last night."
"What was wrong with him?"
"I didn't hear."
"Liquor, do you suppose?"
"No, she licked him."

The frost is on the pumpkin all right, and I might add that the green grocer charges a magnificent price for it.

In being happy at this season, do not forget to try to make some one else happy.

Englewood Women's Club

Next Monday afternoon, November 24, will be former members' day at the Englewood Woman's club. The ex-presidents will be the hostesses for that day. A delightful program has been arranged, Joseph Washington Hall—"Upton Close"—well-known magazine writer, will be the speaker for the afternoon.

Mr. Hall spent a number of years in China, where he returns every year, chiefly as correspondent for American newspapers, and for a year as editor of the Peking Leader. He was English secretary to General Wee Pei-fu when the latter defeated Chang Tsoting and gained control of Peking.

Mr. Hall is now special lecturer on Pacific Asia in the University of Seattle, Seattle, Wash. He is a constant contributor to the Geographic magazine, Asia and the Atlantic Monthly. He has recently brought out a book which describes his adventures in fourteen provinces in China, and is a fluent and magnetic speaker.

The music for the afternoon will be furnished by Miss Virginia Tidd Robinson, who is one of our local talented young vocalists. She was a favorite youthful singer in the community all through her school days, and has developed into a musician of great promise and has held several church positions in our locality.

On Monday morning at 10:45 the Literature department will have as speakers Mrs. Mary E. Rae, whose subject will be "Books for Children," and Mrs. Helen Barton Stillwell, who will talk on "Current Books" and the "Problems of Women."

Shoplifters at Himmel's Bound to Grand Jury

Sadie Cohen, Clara Soph and Alice Stein, the three women who made a daring attempt to steal a $1,500 mink coat at the Himmel fur shop at 435 63rd st. on November 1, had a hearing before Judge Allegretti Tuesday, and were bound over to the Grand Jury in the sum of $2,500 each. All of the women are said to have past records as shoplifters, and register as living at 3500 W. North ave. The Himmels deserve the thanks of the merchants for capturing these smooth workers, and will prosecute the case until the criminals are punished.

Sam Bransky Bought His Christmas Trees in Vermont

Samuel H. Bransky returned this week from the White Mountains of Vermont, where he purchased two carloads of the finest spruce Christmas trees and all kinds of natural decorations for the festive season. Organizing to Secure Adequate Sewers

Tuesday afternoon a joint meeting of various improvement and commercial associations of this part of the city was held in the director's room of the First Englewood State bank, at 63rd st. and Yale ave. Representatives from Auburn Park, Hamilton Park, Park Manor, Englewood Commercial and Civic association, and several others, were there, and an informal discussion of the great need of a new sewer system was participated in by many. Mr. Hughes, as secretary of the original committee, reported progress, and the invitation of the different associations, many of whom were not represented. After going over the matter thoroughly, it was decided to call a joint meeting of all those interested in sewerage in the southwest district, to meet at Hamilton Park assembly hall on Tuesday evening, December 2nd, at 8 o'clock, to meet and hear from Mr. C. D. Hill, the expert engineer of the city Board of Public Improvements.

It is hoped that Mr. Hill will have a good audience and every property owner in this district is interested. The fact that our sewer system is underground and out of sight seems to detract from its importance in the eyes of some people, but if we want our district to progress and advance, we must have better sewers, and now is the time to move for them. They mean more for the general welfare and sanitary good of the community than anything in our development, and every community should be represented at the meeting December 2.

Charley Edrington Gets After the Premier Taxi

Charley Edrington, business manager of the Englewood Business Men's association, with the help of the city police, has succeeded in regulating to some extent the intolerable taxi nuisance at 63rd and Halsted sts. The "Yellow," also the "Checker" taxis have been compelled to use the space on 63rd st., between Halsted and Green, and not have more than three cars in line at any one time, but the Premier seized upon Halsted st., between 63rd st. and the elevated station, and had as many as ten cars parked there at one time, even compelling private cars to get out of their way. The new rule compels the Premier cars to park on the west side of 63rd st., at least fifty feet south of 63rd, and no more than three cars will be allowed at one time. Officer Specht, at the crossing, has been very diligent in compelling the taxis to obey these rules, and there is a marked improvement in the past week.

Christian Industrial Worker Hurt by Truck

Mrs. Hazelhurst, the solicitor for the Chicago Christian Industrial league at 6737 Wentworth ave., is back at work again after being laid up several weeks after being struck by an auto truck at 69th and Wentworth some weeks ago. The driver did not stop and no one got the license number. She was picked up by the police and taken to the hospital. She was badly bruised, but no bones were broken.

Bank Messenger Robbed at 62nd and Wentworth Avenue

William R. Schultz of 6436 Peoria st., a messenger for the Guarantee Trust and Savings bank at 63rd and Green sts., was kidnapped by two armed robbers at 62nd st. and Wentworth ave. Thursday afternoon, the 13th, and taken in an automobile to the subway under the Rock Island at 51st st., where he was robbed of $320 in currency and $1,800 in checks. The police were notified and have been working the neighborhood for clues, but thus far to no avail.

There are still 800,000 war veterans on the unemployment list in England.

Another Englewood Pioneer Passes

Robert Baker, who came to this part of the country over fifty years ago, died at his home, 641 63rd st., last week and was buried from Lanyon's chapel Thursday. Interment was at Mount Greenwood. Mr. Baker was a skilled gardener and specialized on cauliflowers, in fact, was awarded a gold medal at the Columbian World's Fair for his products. His garden was on the prairie at what is now 59th and Morgan sts., and was conducted by Mr. Baker for many years. The little cottage he lived in was one of the first built in Englewood, and he has lived there continuously since 1884. At one time he owned several farms, but disposed of them nearly thirty years ago, and has since lived a retired life. His wife died five years ago, and an old friend, Miss A. K. Jensen, has been his housekeeper since, and to her he left the little home. Mr. Baker was 77 years of age, and was an Englishman by birth, coming here when 20 years of age. He was attacked by gangrene some years ago, and it extended from his foot, until it became fatal.

Death of Miss Hornstein

Reading Circle of M. E. Church

The Reading Circle of the Englewood First Methodist church will meet at the home of Mrs. George Anderson, 6432 Eggleston ave., Friday afternoon, November 28, at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. John R. Philp will tell the story of the Yellowstone National Park, America's largest, oldest and best-loved national park. Mr. Philp's lecture will be illustrated with moving pictures, which will depict the mountains, forests, wild flowers, lakes, waterfalls, great shining geysers, petrified trees and wild animals living in their native haunts, free and unafraid. Good music will also be a feature of the program.

Members and guests are invited and a special invitation is extended to the husbands of members.

W. H. McDonnell President of Englewood Kiwanians

William H. McDonnell, who was the temporary president of the Englewood Kiwanis club at its organization, was elected to that honorable position at the meeting Tuesday. Wendell Williams was elected vice-president and Henry Jaeger treasurer. The board of directors consists of Harry M. Engelstein, W. M. Wanzer, Homer G. Sailor, Tom Whitehead, Robert Barbee, Erwin Penhallegon and Ben Bassford.

Father James M. Leddy of St. Killian's church was the speaker of the day, and gave an interesting talk on juvenile delinquents and dependents. Father Leddy for ten years had charge of this work and was associated with the Working Boys' home, and made a most interesting talk, urging that the first work in preventing delinquency must begin at the home.

Entertained at Musicale

The Musical and Entertainment circle of the Englewood Baptist church met Wednesday at one o'clock at the home of Mrs. Stucy, 6426 Yale ave. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Warner, Mrs. Washburn and Mrs. Moore. Forty ladies partook of a delicious luncheon. Mrs. Shotwell, who was to have given a talk about her recent trip to Alaska, was too ill to attend, so the afternoon was very enjoyably passed in social intercourse.

A Prayer

Give us this day our daily bread;
In prayer we all engage;
But please to have it well mixed up
With parsley, milk, and sage.

And keep this bread from worldly eyes,
Our pride must be held down;
So please to hide it all away
In a turkey cooked quite brown.

That man lives not by bread alone
Is still quite true, we ween;
So with our bread include today—
Some cranberries and ice cream.

E. B. M. A. Banquet at Cooper-Carlton

Tickets will be $5.00 per person, and it will be the social event of the season in Englewood commercial circles.

Law and the Superlaws

Mayor Dever says that the privileges of armed criminals in Chicago are outrageous and that the police will stop them, says the Chicago Tribune. His orders are that the notorious gunmen shall be taken and searched for weapons, arrested if they are armed, re-examined when they are loose again, etc. The mayor says that the police can take the upper hand away from the criminals who have been above the law.

We believe it can be done. If it is impossible, then we might as well close up shop. It may be a stiff bit of a job to disarm every citizen in this gun-toting community, but the notorious gangsters cannot be running around with their guns in special pockets unless the police permit it.

State's Attorney Crowe made an effective campaign against labor extortionists by keeping them in court defending themselves. He did not put them in the penitentiary. It is too easy to bribe some of a jury or buy a pardon, but he broke down a system of extortion by keeping the extortioners at the expensive work of avoiding convictions.

The police can keep the gangsters on the run by keeping constantly at them. It is not a one day fight. Crime has entrenched itself in politics. It has money and influence and it will not be started on the run by a flurry of police effort. Mayor Dever says it is a question whether the city is to slip into the dark ages or be a unit in the American commonwealth. Chicago has been tolerating terrorism and it will spread if it is not checked. Then the city will not have the security of a mediaeval town.

Sweden prohibits the killing of eagles. This is the result of the efforts of "Sweden's John Burroughs," Bengt Berg, who has aroused great enthusiasm through his films and books.

CHIROPRACTIC
Seeing Is Believing

The NEUROCALOMETER, a scientific instrument, is so sensitive that when placed over the spine it will immediately register a certain degree of pressure, showing the location of the interference to transmission. The chiropractor then knows just what vertebrae to adjust. After giving the adjustment the NEUROCALOMETER is again applied, and, wonderful as it may seem, it registers in all cases a considerable reduction, and in some cases even zero. Why? Because the nerve pressure has been relieved and normal transmission has been restored. Could anything be more convincing? No more worrying about whether your chiropractor has given you the right adjustment or not. Seeing is believing. You are satisfied and in time will get well.
